A calm office letter carries clear words across several visual rows. Each original row belongs to this single paragraph, with spaces retained between ordinary words. A reader can follow the complete text without guessing a paragraph boundary.

Protected reference block remains in place.